

BAVARIANS FIND BREW OF QUALITY IN BERLIN

Government Erects Branch Dispensary for Slaking Thirst With Satisfactory Beverage.

BERLIN, November 14.—Citizens of Munich who have to leave their native hofbrauhaus with regret when their business takes them to the Reich's capital soon will be comforted to find that the Bavarian government has erected a branch dispensary to slake parched Bavarian throats in Berlin with real Bavarian brew.

In the spacious "Europahas" under construction opposite the Anhalter station, where trains from the south arrive, the Bavarian government soon will open a drinking emporium as a branch of the state-owned hofbrauhaus at Munich. Never before has the state erected a bar outside Munich.

Optimists profess to see a diplomatic move in the new hofbrau branch. They are convinced that the Bavarian-Prussian rapprochement, which has been well under way since President Von Hindenburg visited Bavaria last Summer, will reach its culmination through the medium of hofbrau "suds."
